INN AT BAY HARBOR JOINS MARRIOTT INTERNATIONAL'S AUTOGRAPH COLLECTION HOTELS

In June of 2016, Autograph Collection Hotels, Marriott International's distinctive portfolio of independent hotels recognized for celebrating individuality, welcomed the Inn at Bay Harbor to its collection. The Inn becomes only the second Autograph Collection Hotel in Michigan, following The Henry in Dearborn.

Launched in 2010, Autograph Collection Hotels is an evolving ensemble of strikingly independent hotels located in desirable destinations around the world. Exactly like nothing else, each destination, including the Inn at Bay Harbor, has been thoughtfully selected for its bold originality, rich character and uncommon details. From near to far, iconic to historic, the result is a unique array of properties that is nothing less than completely unique, nothing short of collectively exceptional.

Designed in the tradition of turn-of-the-century grand hotels, the Inn evokes levels of service, romance and elegance rarely experienced in Michigan — or anywhere else. From fine dining to spa treatments to intricate details that make each stay special, the Inn's amenities are curated to provide each guest with an unparalleled, unforgettable experience.

In preparation for the conversion from Marriott's Renaissance Hotels & Resorts to the Autograph Collection Hotels brand, the Inn has completed a $2 million dollar renovation. The lobby — centered on a spectacular Schonbek chandelier with more than 34,000 gem-cut crystals and nearly 200 lights — has been modernized with a warm ambiance to settle in from a day's travels. Deep blue wingback chairs, rich leathers, marble tabletops, decorative lighting and a cozy fireplace flanked with bookshelves of northern Michigan memorabilia encourages guests to linger. Off the lobby, intimate alcoves and a gathering table provide the perfect settings to savor a classic cocktail and catch up on conversations with loved ones. Lakeside dining at its finest is served up in the all-new Vintage Chophouse | Wine Bar where guests can indulge, unwind, and soak in refreshing lake breezes and famed 'million dollar sunsets' in this classic all-American steakhouse.

Among the first phase of guest room renovations are 35 newly redesigned Master Suites featuring classic elements with contemporary twists. Calming hues and nautically-inspired patterns, textures and art provide a relaxing state of mind while enjoying the comforts of these one-bedroom suites with full kitchens, living areas with Travertine stone fireplaces, marble baths, and breathtaking balcony views.

SIGNATURE MOMENTS

TRADITION. OUR WAY.

As a remnant of British high society, the concept of high tea suggests something a bit elite, rarefied and exclusive. At the Inn, we've stripped away the airs, and recast the tradition as an all-inclusive afternoon event, where guests meet, mingle, and share stories of their travels. With a lively menu of tea, spirits and snacks, our High Tea has earned its place as a guest favorite – and a hallmark of every satisfying stay.

PIECES OF THE PAST

As souvenirs go, few treasures are as beautiful – or as interesting – as Petoskey Stones. Found almost exclusively in and around Little Traverse Bay, these pieces of fossilized coral are regularly revealed in the waters along the Inn's shoreline. Requiring a sharp eye and a touch of dedication, stone hunters are often rewarded, and both the keepsakes and the memories are sure to last a lifetime.

SIGNATURE MOMENTS

KIDDING AROUND

When summer arrives, our under-18 population shows a marked increase. And for kids of a certain age, our Kids' Club is enough justification to book a return trip. With regularly-scheduled events every day of the week, and our always-popular Saturday movie nights, the younger set will have plenty of distractions – while giving parents some free time to enjoy theirs.

SWEET SPOT.

Northern Michigan grows more than 50% of the annual U.S. cherry crop. It's a sweet statistic that's not well known - but one we're proud to celebrate. That's why we welcome each guest with a gift of chocolate-covered cherries, handcrafted in Petoskey's very own Kilwins Chocolate Kitchens. It's our way of sharing the flavor of the region, and making your stay just a little bit sweeter.

BAY HARBOR GOLF CLUB: THE LINKS

5800 Coastal Ridge Drive · Bay Harbor, Michigan 49770

Architect: Arthur Hills in collaboration with Stephen Kircher

Opened: 1997

Tee Times: 866.759.3427

Reminiscent of great Irish seaside courses, The Links sprawls along the shore of Lake Michigan, forming a backdrop of incomparable beauty, accented with towering bluffs and dunes. A stunning achievement in the sport of golf.

Signature: No. 7. Par 5 — 500 yards

The 7th hole on The Links is arguably one of the most photographed holes in the Midwest. This beauty of a par 5 is perched high on a cliff with expansive views of Lake Michigan as the backdrop. The tee shot offers plenty of fairway but moguls and bunkering are present up the left side. The second shot lulls big hitters into taking a run at reaching the green, but a considerable uphill shot and a typical wind makes this a stretch. Played as a true three shot hole will afford many players a viable run at birdie - if the breathtaking views do not distract.

20 YEARS

This natural beauty is a haven for wildlife and golfers alike. Stately hardwoods tower over lush grasses, wildflowers and wetlands - all within an earshot of Lake Michigan's shore. The final hole opens up to a breathtaking shoreline view.

Signature: No. 4. Par 5 — 577 yards

There are a few different routes to the 4th hole. A large fairway bunker splits the fairway, providing area that is high to the left and low to the right. If you play to the left, you will have a much better look at where you are going to play to next. Playing to the right will create a blind second shot. It is very important to set up a short iron or wedge third shot as the green has a pond in front and falls away to the back. Reaching this green in two is out of the question for a vast majority of all players, with disaster awaiting shots coming up short.

On the short list of the world's most unique golf courses. The Quarry winds its way around and through an immense shale quarry, complete with 40-foot gorges surrounded by stone cliffs, natural ponds and a gentle waterfall. The course finishes with dramatic flair along the shore of Lake Michigan.

Signature: No. 8. Par 3 — 205 yards

A downhill par 3 guarded by a rock faced pond and Lake Michigan shoreline in the backdrop. Once again, the sheer beauty offers up a considerable distraction if you aren't careful. The key to playing this hole successfully is your club selection. Depending on the day, this may change by three or four clubs depending on the strength of the wind.

CROOKED TREE GOLF CLUB

600 Crooked Tree Drive · Petoskey, Michigan 49770

Architect: Harry Bowers

Opened: 1991

Tee Times: 866.759.3427

Crooked Tree Golf Club is perched on bluffs high above Bay Harbor near Petoskey. The course was sculpted through century-old hardwoods and the back nine opens to breathtaking views of Little Traverse Bay and Lake Michigan.

Signature: No. 8. Par 3 — 181 yards

A beautiful downhill par 3 with extensive Lake Michigan views in the background. The green is fronted with a wetland gorge making laying up not an option. Long here will not hurt, but a carefully played chip will be necessary with a sloping green. A par here is a good score heading into the home hole of the outward nine.

BAY HARBOR: THEN AND NOW

For more than a century, Petoskey — and the shoreline of Little Traverse Bay — has been revered for its natural beauty. As early as the late 1800s, well-heeled urbanites laid claim to the area as their own rural playground. During the summer months, wealthy weekenders brought their families and friends to northern Michigan, establishing communities of lakefront “cottages” where socialites could play, relax and recharge after long, cold urban winters.

Arriving by steamships from the east and west, and by land from the south, travelers beat a path to Petoskey at the first sign of warm weather. In 1898, Ernest Hemingway’s parents joined the summer throng, building a cottage on the shore of nearby Walloon Lake. Hemingway, who spent his formative summers exploring northern Michigan, went on to immortalize the area with his series of Nick Adams short stories and his first novel, The Torrents of Spring, which was set in Petoskey.

Concurrent with the rise of the area’s popularity as a summertime destination, Little Traverse Bay was also prized by industrialists eager to capitalize on the area’s rich limestone deposits. During the late 1800s, a quarry took form on the land now known as Bay Harbor. Over the course of the next 100 years, the quarry operation would grow, ultimately occupying more than 1200 acres, spanning more than five miles of the Little Traverse Bay shorefront. The site’s last industrial use — as a cement plant — ceased operations in the 1980s, and despite its enviable location, the site, left bleak after decades of resource extraction, would remain untouched for more than a decade.

In 1993, a group of developers saw the property’s enormous potential. Working with a grand vision — and the resources to see it through — the team embarked on the largest land reclamation project ever undertaken in North America. Over the course of the next several years, Bay Harbor took shape, with nearly three dozen neighborhoods arranged around a village center — all situated to capture the beauty of the both the lake and the natural northern Michigan surroundings. Bay Harbor was designed to make the most of the area’s native appeal, with a deep marina, yacht club, equestrian center, public parks and more than five miles of nature trails.

In 1998, while the community’s redevelopment was in full swing, the Inn at Bay Harbor took shape. Designed to honor the architecture of the area’s century-old grand cottages, the Inn immediately fit both the community and its history, welcoming guests to acres of carefully landscaped grounds, an exhaustive list of amenities, and the area’s most luxurious accommodations.

In the mid 90s, Boyne worked with legendary golf course designer Arthur Hills to develop the Bay Harbor Golf Club — named the “Pebble Beach of the Midwest” by Golf Digest — leveraging the spectacular lakeside setting, and Inn’s commitment to luxury.

Today, two decades since the area’s reclamation began, Inn at Bay Harbor fits like a natural part of the northern Michigan fabric. Located in easy walking distance to boutique shopping, boating, and a long list of other year-round amenities, the Inn welcomes an entirely new generation of northern Michigan travelers — merging the essence contemporary luxury and more than 100 years of tradition.
